GENERAL NEWS.

A Texas Railroad Raided by Train Robbers.

ONE MAN AND FOUR BOYS PERFORM THE ACT.

South Carolina Election Frauds being Investigated with Very Little Eclat.

SPECIAL DISPATCHES TO THE OREGONIAN.

CHICAGO, April 22.—Times, Dallas, Texas, special: Texas train robbers have scored another signal victory. They came out of their rendezvous in the canyon and mountain fastness of Upper Brazos county last night, proceeded west a few miles, and when the train from San Francisco, on the Texas Pacific, pulled up at Ranger station, just west of Canyon Spur, they took possession. There were five robbers, four beardless youths dressed like cowboys, and the fifth, the leader, a stalwart man with the appearance of a desperado, wearing a heavy shirt and large black slouch hat. None were masked. All were armed to the teeth with Winchester rifles and Colt's improved revolvers. Four of the gang corralled Conductor George Hare, and the firemen, engineer and brakemen, alongside the engine, while the red-shirted leader bounded into the express car, commanding the messenger to throw up his hands, which was complied with as the muzzle of the pistol was presented to his face. The colored porter took in the situation and made a dash for the passenger coach and roused three Texas rangers who had been traveling on the trains several weeks as guards in anticipation of a robbery. When they reached the outside the robbers opened fire on them, keeping the captive train men as a breastwork. Of course the rangers returned the fire, but without effect, as to do so would have killed the train men. Consequently none of the combatants were hit, but stray bullets struck a telegraph operator who was retreating to his office, making a slight wound on the back of one of his hands. After the leader had robbed the express car the gang retired in single file, making the train men follow between them and the rangers until they were out of danger. It was nearly an hour before the train men got back to the car. The robbers did not molest mails or passengers. The unexpected presence of rangers shortened part of the plot. The express car was riddled with bullets. The messenger states the robbers secured less than $500. It is generally believed, however, a very large haul was made, but the railroad and express people do not propose letting the loss be made public. Rangers accompanied the train to Weatherford, where a pursuing party was sent out, but up to this evening no arrest is reported. Railroad officials profess to know who the robbers are and predict their capture.

The Providence Tool Company's Factory.

PROVIDENCE, April 22.—A meeting of creditors of the Providence tool company occurred to-day. A statement was presented showing liabilities to be $1,534,000 including $85,363 in notes payable. Assets, $2,690,444, including real estate, $313,000; machinery, $1,329,422, and $91,402 of the company's stock. The latter is worthless now. The company are authorized to use the cash assets in finishing the stock now in progress and make it marketable. The amount of indebtedness is larger than anticipated. Providence banks hold $250,000.

Charges to be Investigated.

ST. LOUIS, April 22.—General Davis, inspector general, attached to Gen. Sherman's headquarters there, will investigate the charges against Captain W. P. Martin, military storekeeper at the arsenal below this city. The charges against Martin are preferred by J. W. Hart, who was a clerk in Martin's department, but resigned and has since made the charges, which are understood to be similar to those recently brought against Colonel E. D. Baker and which were not sustained. The investigation begins next week.

The South Carolina Election Frauds.

CHARLESTON, S. C., April 22.—In the United States court the board of canvassers of Sumter county plead guilty of neglecting and refusing to count the votes of three election precincts of that county. The district attorney did not press the other counts of the indictment. After a statement by counsel in explanation of the action, Judge Bond said that all the government wanted was a vindication of law, and then allowed them to go without sentence.

Epizooty.

CHICAGO, April 22.—A form of the epizootic, or pinkeye, has appeared in many stables and some estimates make the number of horses infected as much as one-third of all in the city. The disease, if taken early, is readily treated, but in its early stages is apparently so harmless that it frequently gets beyond control from lack of attention.

Burned to Death.

LARAMIE CITY, April 22.—A Boomerang special from Carbon says: A horrible accident occurred here this P. M. resulting in the burning to death of Mrs. Theodore P. Henkell. So far as learned she was attempting to start a fire with coal oil, and the can exploded with such force as to cause unconsciousness. The body was burned so as to be unrecognizable. Mr. Henkell is a carpenter in employ of the U. P.

Found Guilty.

The jury in the case of Jas. McKeown, this A. M., brought in a verdict of murder in the second degree. McKeown killed Wendy Smith at Laramie last October.

Lake City Badly Burned.

LAKE CITY, Minn., April 22.—Fire broke out here at an early hour this morning in the vicinity of the Lyons House, near the river, and swept back diagonally through the city, destroying every business block except that known as the Lyons House. Loss estimated at $250,000, partially insured. The fire is now under control.

Scoville's Parting Request.

CHICAGO, April 22.—Scoville, in withdrawing from the Guiteau case, sends to the Washington supreme court a letter a column long, stating his reasons, which are partly personal and partly because he believes his client has not received fair judicial treatment.

On a Tour of Investigation.

CUMBERLAND, Md., April 22.—John I. Davenport, of New York, was here yesterday on business, supposed to be in reference to Rob't Lindsey, a branch of the celebrated Morey letter affair, which Davenport is investigating.

BY ATLANTIC CABLE.

No Foundation.

LONDON, April 22.—The Herald asserts that there is no foundation in international law for the suggestion that the British government exceeded its right in regard to imprisonment of American subjects, or that the United States have a show of ground for addressing either complaint or remonstrance in regard to their imprisonment to ministers of the crown.

Gladstone's Last Budget.

LONDON, April 22.—The Times says it is supposed the budget to be presented to the commons on Monday will be the last Gladstone will submit.

The Same to You, Wilhelm.

BERLIN, April 22.—The new cable connected by Emden with the Anglo-American cable system at Valentia, enabling messages to be transmitted direct between Germany and America, was opened to-day with the following message from the emperor to the president of the United States: "I am very happy to express to you, Mr. President, by the first direct telegraph transit between Germany and America, my satisfaction on the completion of a work by which the friendly relations between both nations may be further enlarged."

Arthur's Reply to Wilhelm.

The president in replying to Emperor Williams' cable said: "Message received with much satisfaction. In common with all people of the United States, so many of whom still speak the German tongue in their homes, I share in the pleasure your majesty expresses at opening this new line of communication and in the faith that it will serve to promote the friendly relations which we desire and which it will be my aim to preserve and increase."

CHINA AND JAPAN.

Affairs across the Pacific.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 22.—The steamer Gaelic, from Hongkong via Yokohama, has arrived. Rumors prevail in the foreign settlements of China of trouble between Spain and Great Britain on account of large sales made to the North Borneo Co. by the British government. The captain of a Spanish vessel, Lin 13, en route from Barcelona to Manila, was arrested by British authorities in Singapore and sent to prison for six months for contempt of court. While in the Red sea he had put in irons three English engineers of his vessel and treated them with great harshness. At Singapore he was arrested under injunction to obey a writ of habeas corpus to produce the prisoners. Under advice of his consul he claimed adjournment of the case. Meanwhile the ship steamed away with the Englishmen in dispute confined on board and the Spanish captain himself a prisoner. The matter has been submitted to the Spanish and English governments.

Chinese merchants in Hongkong and Shanghai have received dispatches from California deprecating the arrival of so many Chinese passengers.

The prejudices against foreign innovations have been revived with the introduction of telegraphs and railways. The conservative party at court has taken the alarm and the new Taeping coal mines, heretofore worked with good prospects, will be closed.

YOKOHAMA, April 7.—Mr. Asino, senator, has been appointed minister to Rome and will leave in May.

In future the army is to follow the German system instead of the French as heretofore.

Conferences on treaty revision are regularly held, but nothing can be learned.

Much displeasure is felt by American merchants with the statement of a native paper that kerosene said to have passed in New York a burning test of 115 degrees burns at 86. The statement has been officially contradicted by importers.

A fire occurred at Tokio March 23d, destroying over 100 houses.

CANADA.

Believes in the Power of England.

OTTAWA, April 22.—In the house of commons to-day in debate Sir John McDonald, premier, contended for the present system of government, because "if we made treaties, we would not have power to enforce them, whereas now the treaties we are interested in are enforced by power of England. He believed the resolutions pending, bad, and really meant independence and separation from the mother country. DeCosmos, of British Columbia, believed Canada should negotiate her own treaties, and did not see how she should dread independence in favor of Canada becoming an independent nation. Ourmet, of Quebec, favored Canadian independence and thought there was nothing to prevent Canada's taking care of itself.

Blake's Resolution Defeated.

OTTAWA, April 22.—Blake's resolution setting forth that Canada should negotiate commercial treaties, was defeated in the commons by 121 to 53.

Chemists and physicians agree that King of the Blood is composed of some of the rarest and most valuable and medicinal elements known to science, and is a very efficient purifier of the blood. See advertisement.

THE PERUVIAN SCHEME.

Some New Developments Concerning Blaine's Connection with It.

SPECIAL DISPATCHES TO THE OREGONIAN.

NEW YORK, April 22.—A Herald's Philadelphia special interviewed James R. Mantrop, champion of Havener of Peruvian Company fame. The latter gave the correspondent a list of the original stockholders of the concern. It includes John R. McPherson, U. S. senator from New Jersey, one share of one-twentieth for which he paid $10,000; Jacob R. Shepherd, No. 29 Spruce street, New York, one-twentieth, which he received from Montgomery; consideration unknown. Most of the other members are Philadelphians. The following conversation occurred between Mantrop and the correspondent:

Was, then, senator McPherson the mysterious senator who has been referred to so often?

I suppose he is. McPherson worked very hard in the matter, and I know of a good many men to whom he talked to very earnestly on the subject.

Mr. Mantrop, did he believe in the claim?

Yes, I think he did; at least at first he did.

Do you know of anything connecting ex-Secretary Blaine or any other government official with the deal? was asked.

I do know that an attempt was made to approach Blaine, even with stock to a large amount, but it failed miserably. The man who made the offer was insulted on the spot and almost kicked out of the secretary's presence.

Indeed, and how do you know this?

Because I was the man.

And the late Minister Hurlbut; what about him?

He was offered stock also, to my certain knowledge, but he spurned the offer indignantly.

Were there any others who were afterward supplied with stock?

Yes, indeed; a large number; but it's too laughable to talk seriously about, said Mantrop (convulsed with mirth); there are some big fish in the net yet, if the congressional committee can only land them.

Who, for instance?

Well, Gen. Grant is owner of $25,000 worth of stock of the great Peruvian company. And Mantrop laughed until the corridor rang with his wild guffaws.

Did he pay the full price for it?

No.

Was the money raised for him in New York by some public spirited citizens?

Exactly the amount, I believe, of $25,000 was invested in Peruvian company stock. I don't know where the money came from. I know that he paid the first installment of $3800 on allotment, but what he has paid since I don't know of my personal knowledge.

Mr. Updegraffe moved to lay the bill and substitute amendments on the table. Rejected.

The remainder of Holman's amendment was agreed to without division.

The substitute offered by House which is the bill reported by him from the committee on civil service reform was rejected.

Then Bragg moved that the original "Bowman bill," as amended by Holman, be committed to the judiciary committee. The vote resulted 84 to 53, but Holman raised the point of no quorum and the matter went over until Monday.

House adjourned until Monday.

An Indignant Denial.

Senator McPherson has instructed counsel to bring action for libel against all persons engaged in circulating a report that he was connected with the Peruvian company. He says he never knew of its existence until the investigation began, and never owned any stock.

CONGRESSIONAL PROCEEDINGS.

House.

WASHINGTON, April 22.

Resolution was adopted requesting the commissioner of agriculture to state whether cinchona can be grown in the United States.

House resumed consideration of the bill for judicial ascertainment of private claims.

Springer ridiculed the statement made by Camp, to the effect that rebel war claims to the amount of millions were ready to be dumped into congress if the democrats should gain control. He advocated the adoption of a constitutional amendment to stem the tide of private claims.

The previous question was ordered and Holman offered an amendment providing that jurisdiction of the court of claims shall not extend or include any claim against the United States growing out of destruction of property by the army or navy during the rebellion, or for the use and occupation of real estate by any officers of the United States at the seat of war, nor to any claim against the United States which is now barred by virtue of the provision of any law of the United States. It further provides that in any case of claim for supplies or stores taken by or furnished to any part of the military or naval forces of the United States for their use during the rebellion the petition shall aver that the person who furnished such supplies or stores, or from whom they were taken, did not give aid or comfort to the rebellion, but was throughout loyal to the government of the United States, and unless the court shall on preliminary inquiry find that person was loyal, the court shall not have jurisdiction of such cause and that previous proceedings be dismissed.

Thompson, of Kentucky, offered an amendment to the amendment providing that no claimant shall be found guilty who resided at the time the claim arose, or accrued on property taken or furnished in a state not in rebellion against the United States nor shall a claim be rejected on that account unless the claimant was guilty of an overt act of treason, which shall be proven by the testimony of two credible witnesses; rejected—yeas 10, nays 86.

Dunn offered an amendment to the amendment substituting for a court of claims as a tribunal to which claims should be referred, various district courts throughout the country. Dunn, in advocating his amendment, asserted the advisability of removing all these claims from the atmosphere of Washington, and in his view was sustained by Bland, who declared Hallett Kilbourn would not have received a verdict for $100,000 anywhere else than in Washington.

Dunn's amendment was rejected.

Butterworth moved to strike out from Holman's amendment the words "nor shall said court have jurisdiction of any claim against the United States which is now barred by virtue of any provision of any law of the United States." Rejected.

A division on Holman's amendment having been demanded, a vote was first taken on the portion providing that jurisdiction of court shall not extend to any claim against the United States growing out of destruction of property by Union forces during the rebellion, nor the use of property by such forces at the seat of war, nor to any claim which is now barred by virtue of any provision of any law of the United States. Amendment adopted.

PACIFIC COAST NEWS.

CALIFORNIA.

Names to Remember.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 22.—It is understood that among the signers of the petition from New York praying the president to veto the Chinese bill are the following corporations and firms that are represented in this city, viz: Insurance companies—German American and Phoenix of New York. Exchange and tradesmen—dry goods, E. S. Jeffray; bankers, Seligman & Co.; importers, A. A. Lowe & Co.

A Dishonest Mayor.

The mayor of Long Island City has been arrested for robbery of $114,000, alleged to be misappropriated from the proceeds of the sale of bonds. His bail was fixed at $60,000.

Suicide.

LOS ANGELES, April 22.—At noon to-day Julius L. Barbey, railroad agent at Compton, in this county, went home to dinner and blew his brains out. No cause is known for the act. Deceased was a native of France, was a soldier in the late war, and had been in the service of the railroad company about ten years.

ARIZONA.

The Indian War.

TUCSON, April 22.—The Citizen has the following special from Camp Thomas: James Newland and wife arrived here safely this evening. They left Eagle creek three days ago and heard nothing of the outbreak until their arrival here. They saw nothing of the hostiles. There is no news from Lamb or McMurran. The Indians are reported in great strength at Eagle creek awaiting others to join them. The telegraph line to Apache came up last evening. It was cut by the hostiles at or near Green's camp and repaired from here. Companies B and L, 6th cavalry, with Lts. Anderson and Sands, Capt. Overton commanding, left there yesterday to follow the trail. They expect to strike the Indians on Eagle creek. The count at San Carlos shows that all the Warm Springs are out. Grave doubts are entertained regarding the White mountain Indians, and there would be no surprise to hear of them leaving the reservation. Everything is quiet at the agency and sub-agency. Company H, 12th infantry, arrived at Grant to-day.

A Slight Brush with the Apaches.

TUCSON, April 22.—A Star special from Fort Thomas, to-day, says that Captain Sands with troop B., of the sixth cavalry, had a running fight with Indians about noon to-day. They killed one Indian and captured one horse, which they brought to Fort Thomas this evening. As there were over one hundred Indians he had to retreat, having had about thirty men in his command. The troops will likely start out again to-morrow. Mr. McMurren says he was shot by Indians to-day about one mile north of this place.

An Unconfirmed Report.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 22.—A Charleston, Arizona, dispatch says: It is reported Indian scouts at Huachuca attempted to leave the post Thursday night but were prevented by military and are now under guard. No official confirmation of the report is made.

Indian Massacres in New Mexico.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 22.—A Lordsburg, New Mexico, dispatch says: Joe Orr, master of transportation for the forwarding firm of Smith & Babcock, just arrived from Clifton, reports five of his teamsters killed by Indians yesterday afternoon, four miles east of Clifton, and sixty head of mules run off. Among the killed were Messrs. Frost, Beattie and Thornton. Several others were killed in the same vicinity. The Indians then attacked the smelting works of the Detroit Copper Mining Company, but were repulsed without any known loss. The Apaches then crossed the San Francisco river, just below the smelting company's works, following an old trail through Doubtful canyon, and are supposed to have started thence south for Mexico. About 200 warriors, under Loco and Juh, were in the band. A small detachment crossed the Southern Pacific track about twenty miles west of Lordsburg last night, and killed a track walker. The situation is alarming, especially in Gila river valley. Troops are in pursuit, but well in the rear.

WASHINGTON NEWS.

Fitz John Porter Complains of his Treatment by Arthur.

THE RIVER AND HARBOR BILL NEARLY FINISHED.

Mrs. Scoville Declares Her Intention of Lecturing in the Interest of Guiteau.

SPECIAL DISPATCHES TO THE OREGONIAN.

WASHINGTON, April 22.—The following is the full text of the petition of Fitz John Porter to President Arthur, which was considered at the cabinet meeting yesterday:

MORRISTOWN, N. J., April 7, 1882.

The President, Washington, D. C.—Sir: I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt, through the secretary of war, under date of the 4th inst., of your decision upon my application of Dec. 13, 1880, to annul and set aside the findings and sentence of the court martial in my case and nominate me to the senate for restoration to my former rank in the army. Your decision after determination of the powers of the president as expressed in the opinion of the attorney general is that compliance with the application contained in my letter is not within your power. I may have misunderstood the extent of the constitutional power of the president when I asked you to do directly with the aid of the senate that which a board of distinguished army officers had, in the interest of justice, recommended should be done, but which you, concurring in the opinion of the attorney general, inform me you have no power only in part to perform, and that special legislation by congress is needed to complete the justice asked for. My application was based upon the recommendation of the advisory board appointed by the president to examine into the facts and to report what action in their opinion justice required should be taken by the president. That board found and reported after a long and patient examination and consideration of all facts in the case, that my conduct in all the events of August, 1862, inquired into by the court-martial by which I was tried, was, in the light of the full evidence which was then laid before the court, and also that which was unattainable at the time of my trial subject to criticism, much less deserving of censure or condemnation; and was obedient, subordinate, faithful and judicious. It saved the union army from disaster on the 29th of August, and the advisory board recommended that, in their opinion, justice required of the president's hands such action as may be necessary to annul and set aside the findings and sentence of the court-martial in the case of Maj. Gen. Fitz John Porter, and to restore him to the position of which that sentence deprived him, restoration to take effect from the date of his dismissal from the service. Relying also upon the clear and emphatic language of the board, that all the facts in every instance stand out in clear contrast to these supposed facts upon which he was so judged guilty, and that it is not possible that any court-martial should have condemned such conduct if it had been correctly understood, and believing I am entitled to the complete and just vindication recommended by the board and that the sentence of court martial subsequently proven by overwhelming and unrefutable testimony to have been erroneous in its basis of assumed facts, and utterly destructive of the happiness and welfare of the officer who has never failed in the strictest and most honorable fidelity to his government, should not be a barrier to his relief to which I consider myself entitled. I again renew to you as chief magistrate my appeal for justice, conscious of my absolute and entire innocence. I have not ceased from the hour of the promulgation of the sentence of court martial persistently to protest against the terrible injustice done me, and have striven in every proper mode to secure my vindication, of which the public records now before you will establish the justice. I now respectfully and most earnestly ask that you will grant remission of that portion of the sentence of court martial which remains unexecuted, and carry into effect the recommendations of the advisory board so far as the same lies within your constitutional power, and transmit the result of your action together with findings of the board to congress coupled with such recommendation in the premises as you may deem just and proper. Very respectfully yours,
FITZ JOHN PORTER.

England has a Finger in the Chilian Pie.

Washington specials have the following points: Private letters from Chili say editorial comments in Chili are those of great glee and the joy of the people here at the change in the policy begun by Blaine is open and avowed. There is no doubt that Chili has been receiving moral support from England and it is the general belief that England and Chili have come to some understanding respecting the isthmus canal. It is everywhere believed that England intends to control either the whole canal or a fair share in it. Chilian sires kept informed of the purpose of this government and Trescott has been astonished to find the information which should have reached him first has been known in Chili before he himself had received it, officially or privately.

The Kilbourn Farce.

WASHINGTON, April 22.—There is sharp criticism of the manner in which the government interests in the Kilbourn case have been defended, or rather been neglected. District Attorney Corkhill, with other important cases on his hands, and but one assistant, was supposed to defend government interests, while able and influential counsel were arrayed on Kilbourn's side, and on the jury were some who had figured rather conspicuously in notorious rings of the past here. There are those who have openly expressed the opinion that the government's case was given away, or allowed pretty much to go by default.

A Surprising Verdict.

General surprise is expressed at the verdict rendered in the Kilbourn case, the prevailing opinion being that it is excessive and ought to be set aside.

A Possible Enactment.

NEW YORK, April 22.—Post's Washington: It is somewhat expected the president will send a message to congress recommending that the law be amended so that a posse comitatus can be used in territories in enforcement of order by local authorities, the message to have special reference to punishment of cowboys in Arizona. Democrats will decline to consent to use of the army as a posse comitatus in states, but might agree to an amendment with respect to territories. Should such a bill be enacted it would not be without influence in future Mormon complications.

The River and Harbor Bill.

Representatives Carpenter, Thompson of Kentucky, and Pound appeared before the house committee on commerce to-day, asking appropriations for river and harbor improvements. This was the final hearing, and the committee expect to report a bill to congress by the 4th of May. From present indications the river and harbor bill this year will recommend the appropriation of at least $16,000,000, an increase of nearly $4,000,000 over last year.

Star Route Cases.

The court proceeded to consider what are known as the straw bond cases. Counsel for Miss Kate Armstrong filed a motion to quash the indictment against that defendant on the ground of a misnomer; she being indicted under the name of K. M. Armstrong. The motion will be considered hereafter. Counsel for A. E. Boone presented a motion to quash in his case, but court adjourned before much progress was made in the case.

An Anti-Irish Bill Wanted.

NEW YORK, April 22.—Tribune's Washington special: A petition was received in the house to-day from Milwaukee Orangemen asking congressmen to take measures to prevent immigration of Catholic Irish, and to pass a law similar to the Chinese bill. Gen. Bragg, of Wisconsin, referring to it, very plainly said that it was exactly what he predicted when the Chinese bill passed, and was in a great measure the cause of his opposition.

Mrs. Scoville's Intentions.

WASHINGTON, April 22.—Mrs. Scoville stated to-day she intended to prepare a petition to the president for commutation of Guiteau's sentence to imprisonment for life, and travel around the country lecturing and circulating the petition for signatures.

Pension Clerks to be Increased.

It is probable that the house appropriation committee will report in favor of increasing the clerical force in the pension office to a number sufficient to bring up the work in the pension cases now so much in arrears.

Preparing for an Emergency.

WASHINGTON, April 22.—Secretary Folger has telegraphed the commander of the Corwin that if Behring straits are closed and he must try and reach the Rodgers' crew by traveling across the country.

The Ute Commission.

It is stated to-day that the nomination of Henry Paine, James F. Gardner, and Jackson Orr of Colorado, will be sent to the senate on Monday as members of the Ute commission.

The Assassin's Continued Insolence.

Guiteau, in the book he has recently sent out for publication, refers to his crime for which he stands condemned, saying:

"I spoke advisedly on [illegible] this subject. I say I am glad Garfield ought to have been removed, and I was God's man to do it. If I am murdered on the gallows this nation and the officials who do it will pay well for it. It will be a long time before the Almighty lets up on them. I had rather go to glory in June than to Auburn for life."

The complaint was rheumatism, which with Mr. J. W. Walker, of Waterloo, Ind., suffered for fifteen years; after trying a great many remedies without being relieved, he was finally cured by St. Jacob's Oil. He says he feels like a new man.

SHAKESPEARE AND THE BIBLE.

The Great Poet's Use of the Holy Scriptures.

A DISCOURSE LAST NIGHT AT TRINITY CHURCH BY REV. [illegible]

There is one sentence in Shakespeare that may stand with much appropriateness, I think, at the beginning of my remarks to-day, because it can be applied to him, and may find its illustration in my poor effort to show you what he thought of, and how he used the sacred scriptures.

"The evil that men do lives after them,—
The good is oft interred with their bones."

At the first reading it may startle us a little, and yet its truth becomes clear on closer study. The evil that men do does live after them. It is one of the mysterious things of this life that evil words and evil deeds have a wonderful power of lingering in the life and memory of men. There are evil words which we have read or heard in youth which we seem to be utterly unable to erase from our being. Like vile weeds, they yield not to the labor of the gardener. And there are evil deeds which propagate themselves, until the original deed, improved upon, has become a mighty power of corruption. One man invents a new kind of sin; another adds to it; and the result is that thousands are carried away by it as captives to the devil. This is all plain enough. That which most startles us is,—that the good is oft interred with our bones. We think, "Why can not good live as well as evil?" And good does live. You will take notice that the great bard says, "The good is oft interred with our bones." It is not always; it is not ever, entirely. Yet good only lives and thrives by effort on our part. Evil lives without and in spite of our efforts. It is a little bit of theology, which I throw in here, as extra. For I do not intend to trouble you now with theology. I am thinking only of this: When you and I come to die, what kind of works shall we on our death beds rejoice in leaving behind us, works like Shakespeare, which will leave men better and wiser, or works like some other men, that shall produce doubt and corruption forever? It is a good thought to carry along with us while we are in health and strength.

In speaking of Shakespeare's use of the scriptures, we must of course think of the time in which he lived, and of the condition of the bible at that time. He was born in 1564. He was therefore much younger than Elizabeth in whose reign he lived; and was about the same age as King James, in whose reign he died. From this you will see that he lived in the most exciting period of English history; while the English nation were working themselves free from the grasp of medieval superstition and corruptions. He lived to see the present English bible—published, as you know, in 1611. But he could not have made use of it in his works, which were written and mostly published before that date. What copy of the scriptures, therefore, did Shakespeare use? It is an interesting question in many ways; and may serve to give us some idea of the general proof upon which the early existence of the New Testament rests. Shakespeare quotes the scriptures, evidently, from his own language. If we had no other proof of any translation having been made, we should have enough from his own words, to show that the scriptures were known and read in English at the middle and close of the 16th century. But we have abundant testimony to prove this. Coverdale's Bible was printed in 1535, and was dedicated to Henry VIII. This was the version of which it was said by that capricious king, "let it go abroad among my people," this is the book that was laid in the choir of every church, "for every man that willed to look and read thereon;" and of this book, in twenty years, thirty-one impressions were made. In the 2d year of Queen Elizabeth the whole bible was printed at Geneva, by men who had fled from England in the reign of Mary. This was a revision of Tyndal's version, and was the book most generally used in private houses. It was also the first bible divided into verses. The bishop's bible was published in 1568—when Shakespeare was a toddling youngster, and was no doubt the book from which he read and quoted. I should like to see the very copy that the great poet used. If compared with our own, you would see how much more beautiful the book now is, in outward appearance than those published in the reign of the virgin queen. In this, as in many other ways, other men have labored, and we have entered into their labors.

That Shakespeare really understood and valued the scriptures is proved by upwards of twelve hundred passages in his works. I am not going to quote or refer to even one-tenth of these, so no one of my audience need get alarmed. Some of these are not direct quotations, but are so clear that we can easily see what scripture he had in mind. For instance, in Othello, we find the expression, "Haply for I am black." In the Merchant of Venice there is a similar expression:

"Mislike me not for my complexion,
The shadowed livery of the burning sun."

And the reference we can easily see, is to the Song of Solomon—"Look not upon me because I am black, because the sun hath looked upon me."

There are many of these references: Macbeth says, "Lighted fools the way to dusty death." We easily recall the words of the 22d psalm: "Thou hast brought me unto the dust of death." And this again is a reference to Genesis, "Unto dust shalt thou return."

In King Lear, act 2d, are the words, "We'll send thee to school to an ant, to teach thee there's no laboring in winter." The reference to one of the Proverbs is so evident that I need hardly state it.

I could place over against these indirect quotations, parallel passages from scripture, showing from whence the poet derived his thought. Let me cite only a few examples. In the fifth act of Hamlet, we read:

"There's a divinity that shapes our ends,
Rough hew them how we will."

Read, in connection with this, the 9th v. 16th chap. of Prov., "A man's heart deviseth his way, but the Lord directeth his steps." The thought is the same in both quotations.

In Henry VIII we have, "Man is the image of his own Maker," which you will all recognize as the language of Moses in the book Genesis.

In the second part of Henry VI., act 2, section 3, the king says to Gloster, "Give up thy staff: Henry will to himself protector be; and God shall be my hope, my stay, my guide, and lantern to my feet."

It is evident the writer had in mind the 119th Psalm: "Thy word is a lamp to my feet, and a light unto my path."

Hamlet in the fifth act says: "We defy augury; there's a special providence in the fall of a sparrow." He is quoting, of course, the words of our blessed Lord, who tells us that not a sparrow can fall to the ground without our heavenly Father's notice.

In Richard III. we read: "It is as hard to come as for a camel to thread the postern of a needle's eye," which is clearly quoting our Lord's words about the difficulty of entering into the kingdom of heaven.

In "All's well that ends well," act 2d, Helen says:

"He that of greatest works is finisher,
Oft does them by the weakest minister;
So holy writ in babes hath judgment shown,
When judges have been babes."

This is an allusion to the 8th Psalm—and more particularly to St. Mathew xi:25, "I thank thee, oh father, Lord of heaven and earth, because thou hast hid these things from the wise and prudent, and hast revealed them unto babes."

In Richard II., act I, the Duchess is urging John of Gaunt to avenge her Gloster's death. Gaunt says, it was God's substitute that had taken Gloster's life.

"The which if wrongfully,
Let heaven revenge—for I may never lift
An angry arm against his minister."

Then, says the Duchess:

"Where, then, may I complain myself?"

And Gaunt answers:

"To God—the widow's champion and defence."

He is referring to many passages of scripture, especially the 10th and 68th psalms. "He defendeth the fatherless and widow. A father of the fatherless and a judge of the widow."

In Shakespeare's own day, everybody that could read at all, read the scriptures. But this could not be said of the ages before. And I think Shakespeare will be found consistent in this. While the great desire of the people for the word of God, in the days of Elizabeth and James, would have led him to use scripture language, you will find, I think, that the references or quotations are for the most part put into the mouths of princes, kings and nobles, those who were most likely to have been able to read the Latin vulgate.

Besides these indirect quotations Shakespeare uses many illustrations drawn from biblical sources. Here is a well known passage from the Tempest, spoken by Prospero, of Milan:

"And like the baseless fabric of this vision,
The cloud-capped towers, the gorgeous palaces,
The solemn temples, the great globe itself,
Yea, all which it inherit, shall dissolve,
And, like this insubstantial pageant faded,
Leave not a rack behind."

It will remind you all, I have no doubt, of the language of Simon Peter. "The heavens shall pass away with a great noise, and the elements shall melt with fervent heat."

In this same speech, and directly following the quotation I have just made, occur those words, so well known and often spoken:

"We are such stuff
As dreams are made of, and our little life
Is rounded with a sleep."

Is it fanciful to suppose that the great poet had in mind the death of the first martyr—and the words of St. Luke: "When he had said this he fell asleep?"

In Troilus and Cressida, where Ulysses is complaining about the divisions in the Grecian camp, he says:

"But when the planets,
In evil mixture, to disorder wander,
What plagues and what portents? what mutiny?
What raging of the sea, shaking of earth?
Commotion in the winds? frights, changes, horrors?
Divert and crack, rend and deracinate
The unity and married calm of states
Quite from their fixture?"

I believe this was written with our Lord's description of the destruction of Jerusalem in view. St. Luke says: "And there shall be signs in the sun, and in the moon, and in the stars; the sea and the waves roaring; for the powers of heaven shall be shaken."

Of course it would be a mistake to make Ulysses quote the New Testament, but this does not hinder us from believing that the thought has been suggested to Shakespeare by books which were unknown to the Greek. And this was perhaps the reason why the reference was not more clearly made. The great poet makes but few mistakes, and never places his characters out of harmony with their surroundings.

At any rate, here is a quotation from Richard III. that cannot be denied. Here one of the murderers of Clarence is made to say:

"How fain like Pilate would I wash my hands
Of this most grievous, guilty murder done."

No one could have written that unless he had been familiar with the gospel of St. Mathew.

But let me pass on to another point. There is one way in which Shakespeare's genius shows itself which is worth remembering. He could take the very pith and marrow from any subject, and from them give us a new creation. His genius seemed to seize upon the deepest beauties, and most hidden meaning of all that he read and handled. And so it is remarkable that his works exhibit a command of scripture idiom. It is even more remarkable, perhaps, that he exhibits a real exegetical knowledge of the passages he quotes. He never misapplies a text, and never makes an unlawful application of a text. This cannot be said even of our modern preachers and theologians. It certainly is worth remembering, when we recall the fact that the great bard could have known nothing of Hebrew or Greek. He must have caught his idiom, therefore, from that almost intuitive knowledge which he seems to have possessed of all subjects. And from his habit of giving us the true meaning of the passages quoted, he shows his honesty and his reverence, as well as his genius. For example, in the Merchant of Venice, the history of Jacob and Laban is given in a manner which Bishop Wordsworth refers to as "an instance of the tact with which a passage of scripture, open to misconstruction, is applied with perfect accuracy, and yet divested of all dangerous tendencies." Yet the quotation referred to is put into the mouth of Shylock. Shylock speaks of Jacob's plan for increasing his stock, and improving his cattle, and says, "This was a way to thrive, and he was blest; and thrift is blessing, if men steal it not."

The conclusion, you see, is well drawn and true; and yet an author of less genius and less honesty, might easily have stumbled. We hardly know which to admire more, Shylock's speech or Antonio's answer. For though what Shylock says is true, yet in his mouth it has a dangerous sound. So we are not surprised when Antonio adds, "The devil can cite scripture for his purpose."

This and, by the way, you will see is an allusion to our Lord's temptation in the wilderness, where the devil misquotes scripture, which Shylock did not.

There is a passage in Richard III. that seems to express Shakespeare's personal dislike to the misapplication of texts. Living as he did at a time when every unlettered man in the kingdom thought himself qualified to explain scripture, he had no doubt heard many strange uses made of the bible. The passage that I mean is spoken by the wicked Gloster. Referring to his own crimes, and pretending that others had wronged him, he says:

"And then I sigh, and with a piece of scripture,
Tell them that God bids us do good for evil;
And thus I clothe my naked villainy
With odd old ends stol'n of holy writ—
And seem a saint when most I play the devil."

Nor does Shakespeare's reverence for scripture appear only in the passages which he quotes or refers to. The truths of holy writ are in his mind sacred truths, upon which he touches with as much reverence and beauty as any christian of our own days feels for them. Listen to this description of Christmas, taken from Hamlet:

"Some say, that ever 'gainst that season comes,
Wherein our Saviour's birth is celebrate,
The bird of dawning singeth all night long:
And then they say no spirit dare stir abroad,
The nights are wholesome, then no planets strike,
No fairy takes, nor witch hath power to charm,
So hallow'd and so gracious is the time."

This same Hamlet is kept from suicide, in the midst of his troubles, by respect and veneration for the law of God. "Oh that this too, too solid flesh would melt," he says,

"Or that the everlasting had not fixed
His canon 'gainst self-slaughter."

It would be well if more people in our day had Hamlet's mind. How many sickening tragedies we should then be spared from reading in the daily press.

Macbeth has the same fear for himself when contemplating the murder of the good Duncan. In a soliloquy he says:

"If 'twere done, when 'tis done, then 'twere well
It were done quickly. If the assassination
Could trammel up the consequence, and catch
With his surcease, success; that but this blow
Might be the be-all and the end-all here;—
But here upon this bank and shoal of time,
We'd jump the life to come."

In Richard II., act 4, Carlisle is made to say to the new king:

"Many a time hath banished Norfolk fought
For Jesus Christ; and toil'd with works of war,
[illegible] Retired himself
To Italy, and there at Venice, gave
His body to that pleasant country's earth,
And his pure soul unto his captain, Christ,
Under whose colors he had fought so long."

In "Measure for Measure," where the beautiful Isabella is pleading for her erring brother with Angelo, occur those words which for depth of beauty and pathos, as well as for reverence, have never in this world been equalled. She says:

"Why all the souls that were were forfeit once,
And he that might the vantage best have took
Found out the remedy. How would you be
If He which is the top of judgment, should
But judge you as you are? Oh think on that,
And mercy then will breathe within your lips,
Like man new made."

Could any possible words express more truly the spirit of our Lord's sermon on the mount?

And with what reverence is King Henry IV. made to speak to his nobles about the crusade:

"Therefore, friends,
As far as to the sepulchre of Christ,
Whose soldier now, under whose blessed cross
We are impressed and engaged to fight—
Forthwith a power of English shall we levy,
Whose arms were moulded in their mothers' womb
To chase these pagans in those holy fields,
Over whose acres walked those blessed feet,
Which fourteen hundred years ago were nailed
For our advantage on the bitter cross."

It would be hard to find in any English author more devout sentiments, or more evident reverence for all that concerns our blessed Lord, the man of sorrows.

I will close these references with a passage from Richard II., pronounced by the old duke of Lancaster, while on his death bed. It comes in the midst of that well known eulogy on England, which only Shakespeare could have written:

"This blessed plot, this earth, this realm, this England,
This nurse, this teeming womb of royal kings,
Feared by their breed, and famous by their birth,
Renowned for their deeds as far from home,
For Christian service and true chivalry,
As is the sepulchre in stubborn Jewry,
Of the world's ransom—blessed Mary's son."

"The world's ransom" is language that might have been used by the very apostles of our Lord.

Of course it is easy to say that we cannot gather the opinions of an author from the expressions which he puts into the mouths of his characters. It is true that we may not be able to do so from one or two characters. But surely we can do so from the general tenor of an author's works. For my part, I do not see how an author can avoid making his characters more or less exponents of his own views. Unless his characters speak his own language, an author must necessarily be inconsistent. This Shakespeare never is, and so we may conclude that he has not used scripture references to show the belief of his times, but has put into the mouths of his men and women the thoughts and words that were in his own heart, and had sunk into his soul. (I am not now concerned with the poet's christianity, though.) I do really believe that no one but a christian could have conceived or uttered the thoughts that burn and glow in this most wonderful of human authors. None but a christian could have had his sense of justice, and no man could have spoken of mercy as he has done unless he had been impressed with the great mercy of God as shown to us in our Lord. He had evidently pondered well the effects of faith upon the human mind, as well as upon human actions. No doubt when he says, "Our doubts are traitors, and make us lose the good we oft might win," he was thinking of the withering and undermining effect which want of faith produces in the human soul.

But we are not left to his plays, or our own conjectures, as to the faith of Shakespeare. His last will and testament was dated March 25, 1616, about a month before his death. It reads thus:

"In the name of God, Amen. I, Wm. Shakespeare, of Stratford-upon Avon, in the county of Warwick, in perfect health and memory, God be praised, do make and ordain this my last will and testament, in manner and form following, that is to say: First, I commend my soul unto God, my Creator, hoping and assuredly believing, through the only merits of Jesus Christ, my Saviour, to be made partaker of life everlasting; and my body to the earth, whereof I was made." There was no need, surely, to put into his will, words which were not in his very soul.

And this faith, so solemnly expressed in his will, has as solemnly been expressed in his works. His pages are strewn with expressions which show his deep appreciation of the power and Being of the Almighty. Listen to this:

"But mercy is above this Sceptered sway,
It is enthroned in the hearts of kings,
It is an attribute to God himself,—
And earthly power doth then show likest God's,
When mercy seasons justice."

It was the gentle Portia—the "Daniel come to judgment"—that spoke these words—and I think, they are worth remembering in connection with the prayer of Isabella in "Measure for Measure." Portia was a judge, Isabella was a suppliant; yet their language is in substance the same. This will be even more clearly seen from what follows:

"Therefore Jew," continues Portia,
"Though justice be thy plea, consider this—
That in the course of justice, none of us
Should see salvation; we do pray for mercy;
And that same prayer doth teach us all to render
The deeds of mercy."

In Henry VIII. the disappointed and disgraced cardinal tells Cromwell:

"Had I but served my God with half the zeal
I served my king, he would not in mine age
Have left me naked to mine enemies."

Here is a quotation which I cannot at this moment rightly place:

"Poor soul, God's goodness hath been great to thee:
Let never day nor night unhallowed pass,
But still remember what the Lord hath done."

And here is another:

"It is not so with him that all things knows,
As 'tis with us who square our guess by shows,
But most it is presumption in us when
The help of heaven we count the act of men."

One more. Let Henry VI. show us the strong reliance of the poet upon the almighty's power and will:

"Oh thou eternal mover of the heavens,
Look with a gentle eye upon this wretch—
Oh, beat away the busy, meddling fiend,
That lays strong siege unto this wretch's soul,
And from his bosom purge this black despair."

Here I must close. Of course I have not done justice to my subject, but I may have shown you what could be made out of it by abler hands. Let me only add the words of my friend, Dr. Rolfe, an enthusiastic scholar and student of the great poet. "If you want wisdom," he says, "counsel, comfort, help, joy, patience, mercy—how can these blessings be obtained? Let Shakespeare answer. 'Ask of God.' Such is the response of the great king in the realms of thought that greets our ears on every page of the imperishable monuments of his wisdom and learning."

You want some being, higher, holier, purer than yourselves. Let the world's most illustrious and gifted writer, respond to your heart's desire,

"God shall be my hope,
My stay, my guide, and lantern to my feet."

A family living a short distance north of Dallas have been unfortunate lately in the way of being made targets of. The old gentleman was shot in the arm by a neighbor's boy, who was duck hunting, but was not seriously hurt. A few nights afterward the son heard a commotion among some sheep corraled near the house, and taking a shotgun went to ascertain the cause of the disturbance. It seems that the mother had heard the noise and preceded the boy to the corral. The boy saw her and thinking he had discovered some foreign animal, filled her legs full of fine shot. No serious damage was done, and the boy will hereafter be more careful.

"Protection" for the Iowa Farmers.

Chicago Tribune.

Mr. Kasson, of Iowa, holds a conspicuous position in Iowa politics and to some extent in national politics. He is a member of the committee on ways and means in the house of representatives, and has recently presented himself before the country as an offensive and persistent advocate not only of the present infamous tariff on steel, but as one demanding that that tariff shall be enormously increased. The republican state of Iowa has had no doubtful opinions on this subject, and the legislature of Iowa has on more than one occasion of late years memorialized congress asking the repeal, or at least reduction, of the tariff duties on steel. Mr. Kasson, having been out of the country, has not possibly known anything on this subject. The people of Iowa will probably from 1880 to 1885 have 100,000 miles of barbed-wire fence constructed on their farms. The cost of this fencing will of necessity be increased by the taxation levied thereon. This tax may be thus stated:

100,000 miles, patentees' tax, $7.50 per mile	$ 750,000
Kasson's tariff tax, $15 per mile	1,500,000
Total tax on wire fence	$2,250,000

The people of Iowa will doubtless be rejoiced that on all questions to repeal or reduce the tariff tax on steel the Iowa delegation in the house of representatives stood as a unit not only for maintaining that tax, but for increasing it, say, 20 to 40 per cent. more. The farmers of Iowa are expected to cheerfully pay this tax of $25 per mile on their barbed-wire fences, in consideration of being represented by Mr. Kasson and his eight associates, whose political economy seems to be based on the theory that the way to make barbed-wire fence cheap is to tax it to the utmost capacity of the consumers to pay for it.

A TROUBLESOME QUESTION.

The powers of the house of representatives and the authority of the courts are in conflict in the case of Hallet Kilbourn, who has just obtained a verdict of $100,000 against John M. Thompson, late sergeant-at-arms of the house, for false imprisonment. The house, two or three years ago, undertook an investigation of the Washington real estate pool. Kilbourn, who was called as a witness, refused to testify, and was sent to prison for contumacy and contempt, by order of the house. The sergeant-at-arms executed the order as he was directed to do. It has since been held by the supreme court of the district that "no person can be punished for contumacy as a witness before either house unless his testimony is required in a matter into which that house has jurisdiction to inquire;" and incidentally the dictum was also pronounced that the house had no right to inquire into the real estate pool and no power to force a witness to give evidence touching its transactions. Backed by this opinion of the court, Kilbourn has now gone to a jury, whose verdict measures his damages at the large figures above stated.

We now recall no similar case in our history; but parallel cases have arisen in England. That of Stockdale, which occurred in the year 1840, is one of the most famous. The case was this: Some inspectors of prisons had presented a report to parliament in which they alleged they had found in Newgate a book of disgusting and obscene character which Stockdale had published. The house of commons ordered the report to be printed. Stockdale thereupon brought an action against Messrs. Hansard, the parliamentary printers, for libel. The defendants answered that they had published the report by order of the house, an order they had no power to refuse. But the judge charged the jury that "the fact of the house of commons having directed the Messrs. Hansard to publish their reports was no justification to them for publishing a parliamentary report containing a libel;" and Stockdale obtained damages. The publishers notwithstanding, relying on the protection of the house, continued to issue the report, whereupon Stockdale brought a fresh action. This second action the house ordered its publishers to disregard; and as they forebore to plead to it, judgment went against them, fresh damages were given, and their goods were seized and sold by order of the court. It was now proposed to bring to the bar of the house, for punishment all the parties concerned in the action—the plaintiff, his attorney, the sheriff and the under-sheriffs. Some taunted the house with want of courage in not proceeding against the judges themselves, rather than against the ministerial officers of the court. But some of the eminent lawyers of the commons warned those who gave it this counsel that "a resolution of the house was of no avail in a court of justice." On the other hand it was contended that the house possessed every privilege necessary for the proper and effectual discharge of its functions; that the publication of evidence that had led the house to adopt any course was frequently essential to justify that course to the nation, and that to judge of the extent of their privileges and to vindicate them by their own laws belonged to the house alone. The sheriffs were in a trying position. If they obeyed the house of commons the court would punish them for disobedience of its order. If they obeyed the court the house would imprison them for breach of privilege. The situation caused great excitement throughout the nation. Lord Campbell, in his autobiography, shows that the controversy had become a very serious one. Proceedings were begun against the sergeant-at-arms for holding the sheriffs illegally in custody. The house proposed to meet this by setting the court of the queen's bench at defiance. Had that been done the officer of the house, even with the mace in his hand, would have been sent to Newgate by the court of the queen's bench. The house must have retaliated by committing the judges. At this stage a compromise was effected. A bill was brought in to legalize all similar proceedings of parliament in future, by enacting that a certificate that the publication of any document had been ordered by either house should be a defense against any action. This both upheld the authority of the courts of law and practically asserted the reasonableness of the position taken by the house of commons. The compromise was regarded as a happy escape out of a grave difficulty.

The stage which the Kilbourn case has now assumed would go to show that the powers of the houses of congress, in matters of this kind were more limited than has been generally supposed. The analogy from English parliamentary history tends also to confirmation of this view of the subject. In the house of representatives the Kilbourn verdict has already received attention, and it has been proposed to meet cases of this description and all others in which indemnity is claimed against action taken or ordered by branches of the government, by giving the court of claims sole jurisdiction, thus removing such actions from courts whose juries, made up of citizens of the national capital who always welcome every chance to pluck the government, may be trusted always to render verdicts which promise to take money out of the national treasury. The damages in this case are said to be regarded by congress as absurdly large. The plaintiff suffered no real injury. He was only nominally in prison, and that for a short time. If he knows anything about the corrupt real estate pool of the district, it was proper to require him to disclose it. It is not an inquiry into private affairs, because the rascalities carried on in the district have cost the government many millions of dollars. The country would be glad to see the house prosecute the inquiry further, even at the cost of a collision with the judicial tribunals, which are so often warped to the service and protection of those who do wrong.

In the contribution on river and bar improvement the writer makes the mistake of supposing that an erroneous system has been employed at the mouth of the Columbia river. The truth is, nothing whatever has been done or attempted there. We have pursued no plans, and therefore have committed no blunders, save the single blunder of doing nothing. Jetties for the Columbia river and bar have not, in fact, been seriously proposed. Many persons, who possess practical knowledge of the bar believe that the depth can be increased three or four feet simply by dragging, and at very little expense. A pile wall, on the Oregon side, extending a mile or two down from Fort Stevens, to direct the main flow of water in a straight line, would also, it is believed, be of immense service. Mr. Knapp's theories may be very good, but he evidently does not know so much about the Columbia river as he affects to know; else he would not say we have made a mistake in the course we have pursued. The fact is we have pursued no course at all.

An act has been passed by congress and approved by the president directing the postmaster general to investigate all claims of postmasters for the loss of money-order funds, postage stamps, stamped envelopes, newspapers and postal cards belonging to the United States in the hands of such postmasters, resulting from burglary, fire, or other unavoidable casualty, and if it shall be discovered that such loss resulted from no fault on the part of the postmaster, the latter is to be credited with the amount in his accounts. It is provided, however, that no claim exceeding the amount of two thousand dollars shall be credited until after the facts shall have been ascertained and reported to congress and an appropriation made therefor.

CONTROLLED BY THE GROVER MACHINE.

A very remarkable contrast is presented between the condition of the financial affairs of our state at the present time and that which existed at the close of the Grover-Chadwick administration. Prior to the year 1876 the levy of taxes for state purposes was 4 mills. But so great was the waste and profligacy under the "organizer" of the offices that by 1876 a debt of half a million dollars had been created and a special tax of 3½ mills became necessary to meet the additional expense. This increased tax, making a total of 7 mills for state purposes, was paid for several years to make up the money which an extravagant and corrupt administration had squandered. But after the state had fallen into better hands it became practicable to reduce the tax levy. The people now pay a total state tax of 5½ mills for all purposes. Meantime most of the debt left as a legacy by the Grover Chadwick administration has been paid, an asylum for the insane has been erected, the outlay for support of the penitentiary has been reduced, and large expenditures have been made on the state capitol. Here is the difference between an honest and capable administration and a dishonest and profligate one.

Gov. Thayer deserves credit for his share in this great work of retrenchment and reform, but he doesn't get it from his party. That party is still dominated by the Grover ring, which has rancorously opposed him in all that he has done or attempted. It has made war on him during his whole term of office, has denounced him as a traitor to his party because he has joined in bringing about the exposure of the corrupt and incompetent management which preceded him, and finally has prevented a word from being said in commendation of him or of the results of his efforts to introduce honest and economical methods where he had found only extravagance and corruption. The honorable part borne by republican officials in this excellent work has been recognized by their party and rewarded with renomination. On the other hand the refusal of the democratic convention to allow any recognition of the services of Gov. Thayer, even as a compliment, shows how completely the movements of the party are controlled by the Grover machine.

THE ATTITUDE OF THE MORMONS.

It is now evident that the Edmunds bill has given a damaging blow to polygamy. At the recent Mormon conference in Salt Lake, where there were 14,000 of the saints gathered, the church leaders announced that they would "obey the laws of the country but fight for their rights in the courts." The people were commanded "to go home, live their religion, mind their business and government would protect them." How Mormons are to obey the laws of the country while continuing to live their polygamous religion is one of those puzzles which a miracle would be required to solve. There is, however, this amount of encouragement in the attitude assumed by the hierarchy, that it is a confession of the powerlessness of open resistance, and of the need for a hypocritical appearance of submission. We hear no longer the tones of arrogance, the words of defiance, and the expressions of supreme contempt for the United States authority which not long since were the stereotyped forms of manifesting the faculties and inclinations of Mormonism. Instead we now have language which is guarded, a masking counterfeit of obedience, and the simulated voices of deference. This change is marked and significant. Pride, insolence, ferocity, treachery, cruelty, malignity of temper no longer make themselves conspicuous in the scene. But what has so far been gained by the cause of law and virtue is all on the surface. Mormonism feels obliged to occupy a posture of subjection, yet it has not altered its nature or made up its mind to surrender. Polygamy's last hope is in the courts. Every possibility of legal procrastination and jobbery will be attempted.

Two or three years ago the price of deer and antelope skins in Dakota and Montana territories was less than 15 cents a pound, and of elk skins less than 12 cents. Since the construction of the Northern Pacific railroad, however, game has been so scarce that deer and antelope skins have risen to 25 and 30 cents per pound, and elk skins, which had previously had little value, to 22 and 25 cents a pound, or from $2 50 to $7 a hide. A Montana correspondent gives the opinion that at the present rate of slaughter the buffaloes of the plains will last only four or five years more.

A "society paper" of New York, having been asked whether it is unladylike to carry a pug dog, gives the important information that pugs are not going out of fashion, and that the uglier the dog the better contrast it gives to the good looks of the owner. Also, that the saffron-tinted pug is considered the best, because it contrasts well with fashionable mastic red. The true lady, therefore, should always wear an ugly yellow dog.

Col. Clough, engineer of the Yellowstone division of the Northern Pacific railroad, writes under date April 4, that the track had reached that day a point fifty-four miles west of Miles City, and that the construction force were laying iron at the rate of a mile a day. Ahead of the track layers is a smooth valley stretch of twenty-five miles, which distance will be more than covered the present month.

Galveston, Texas, rejoices over the fact that the three masted schooner Ada A. Kennedy, from Wiscasset, Maine, carrying 864 tons of freight and drawing fourteen feet two inches, has been towed into port. This is the deepest vessel that ever came in over Galveston bar. And yet Galveston claims to be a great port.

Mr. Tilden has written another letter against "centralization." Notwithstanding his intense hostility to this principle, he is doing his best to have the democratic party "centralize" upon himself as its candidate for the presidency.

We cannot highly esteem the delicacy and discretion of certain esteemed contemporaries who affect to be facetious over the state of Mr. Joseph S. Smith's health. It is not a matter to joke about.

Shipments east from the western states by the trunk railway lines last year amounted to 10,488,246 tons. From Chicago shipments were 1,513,986 tons, and from St. Louis 337,795 tons.

GOOD FOR SORE EYES.
THIS IS TO CERTIFY THAT IN JUNE, 1881, I had acute inflammation in my eyes, and in spite of all the surgical aid I received in Oregon my eyes continued to get worse, until at length I became helplessly blind. In August I went to San Francisco and was under the treatment of two oculists of considerable repute. One was a professor of diseases of the eye, and I remained under his care one month, but continuing to get worse, I changed to another so-called specialist, to find I was only jumping out of the frying-pan into the fire. I next consulted Dr. Pardee, 611 Clay street, San Francisco. His treatment relieved me from the very first and I continued to improve day by day, until I could see to read as well as any one. I found his treatment both simple and mild, different from any and all other treatments I had received. My residence is in Astoria, Oregon. Insert this card at my own expense out of pure gratitude to Dr. Pardee and without his knowledge, to let any similarly afflicted know where to go to get their eyes cured, as I have been through the mill and speak from a sad experience. m31d&w HENRY HARRISON.

RIVER AND BAR IMPROVEMENT.

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 10.

To the Editor of The Oregonian:

You people of the Columbia river have been talking for years about improving the channel over the bar at its mouth, and the real fact of the matter is you are as far off to-day from any common sense view of it as you were twenty years ago, notwithstanding you have had repeated government surveys and reports and recommendations as to the trouble and its remedy.

By the plans you have pursued and by the government engineers' plans suggested you can keep on to eternity and only make the river and its bar worse and worse.

Can't you take a lesson by the disastrous engineering at the mouth of the Mississippi as demonstrated by the late inundation of that entire valley because its mouth has been dammed up 30 per cent in capacity by the jetties? Another lesson by the now acknowledged ruin of the harbor channel at Charleston, S. C., by Gilmore's jetties? The non-success of the jetties after three years trial at St. Johns river and Fernandino, Florida, and also at Galveston, Texas? Everywhere on the Atlantic and Gulf coast the jetties are complete failures and will be especially so on the Pacific. On the lakes, where the water is smoother, they answer in a limited way with continuous dredging. Every great ocean port in Europe has proved the failure of the principle. The great sea ports of Bologne and La Rochelle, both jettied, were abandoned for exterior ports by the French three years since, and this month it is announced that the French government have got to build a new harbor at Cherbourg. I simply say any man who advocates jetties is no engineer, but simply an imitator—one who allows other people to think for him.

Now if your people will excuse a little common sense and judgment for their own important interests, I will make a suggestion that may some day be of great value to you. When, depends on yourselves. I understand your river and bar will and have had considerable talk about its improvement with the Northern Pacific railroad and Oregon Navigation companies in New York. I am ready to carry out a proposition I made to them that I would take a contract from the government to permanently deepen (six feet) and widen and straighten the channel over the bar at the mouth of the Columbia river at my own risk and expense (myself and associates), without a dollar being paid till I have accomplished it, and not then, even if the government engineers who supervise the work, do not certify that the increased depth and width of channel are permanent for all time without the aid of dredging. Of course it is a costly work, but it is a simple matter to do, and that effectively, for all time. I would advise that if you can't adopt a common sense plan for the improvement of your river to leave it alone, and nature will keep it in some tolerable condition anyway. Yours truly

HENRY F. KNAPP, C. E.

THE LARGEST SALMON AGAIN.

We were yesterday shown by Ed. Curtis at Wm. Hume's establishment, the largest salmon ever caught for that establishment, and, we believe, the largest so far caught this season in the Columbia. It weighs 62½ pounds and was caught by boat No. 11.—Astorian.

It is rather early in the season for very large salmon stories, but the question of who catches the biggest fish in the Columbia river during the season of 1882 should be settled beyond dispute. If furnished by mail THE OREGONIAN will publish the weight of all salmon caught which tip the beam at seventy pounds or over, and name of the fisherman. Communications must be accompanied by the certificate of the person who weighs the fish and we want only the exact truth.—BIG SALMON REPORTER.

Bad Ventilation at the County Jail.

To the Editor [illegible]

There has been much talk of late [illegible] the [illegible] at the county jail. The sheriff asks for [illegible] saying that the new addition to the court house has shut out light and cut off ventilation so that it is absolutely [illegible] to those confined to make some change. The grand jury had a talk with the sheriff and were shown about the premises. They endorse his views, and still nothing is done. I don't believe in making a jail a place of elegance or even comfort, but I do believe in giving the inmates sufficient fresh air and sunlight to prevent disease. Why can't some one arouse the county judge to the necessity of this improvement.

CONSTITUTION AND PROSPECTUS.

Report of the Pacific Mutual Life Insurance Co. of California.

The undersigned committee, representing the policy holders of the Pacific Mutual Life Insurance Co. of California, resident in Oregon and Washington territory, respectfully report that they have completed a careful examination of the business affairs and assets of said company, and find the assets to be correctly set forth in their annual statement of date December 31, 1881. As to the liabilities the committee accept as correct the valuation of the policy reserve made by the insurance commissioner of the state of California.

During the year 1881 the company availed itself of the advantage offered by the amendment to the law under which it was organized, providing for the retirement of the unsecured notes constituting its guarantee fund, and returned all those notes to their makers, thereby relieving itself of all liability accruing under said notes, without in any manner reducing the admitted assets or impairing the responsibility of the corporation.

The company, in October last removed its principal office from the city of Sacramento to the city of San Francisco and now occupies commodious quarters at 418 California street in said last mentioned place. The change of location, though greatly to the advantage of the corporation, has been accomplished without any increase of expense, and, in fact, the office expenses of the company are now materially less than before the removal. We met most of the directors of the company, and were present at one session of its executive committee, and found the gentlemen controlling the corporation to be among the most substantial, successful and capable business men of San Francisco. Every facility and courtesy possible was extended to enable us to arrive at an exact understanding of the condition of the company, its mode of doing business, the character of its securities, its system of accounts and checks—one department and office upon another.

From our examination, we feel justified in saying that the company is upon a sound and enduring basis, its affairs managed honestly, and with prudence and energy, and that there is every reason to expect that from the present time its growth will be as rapid as its friends could wish.

In conclusion, we say that we are well satisfied with our insurance in the Pacific Mutual and have no hesitation in commending it to such of our citizens as desire to effect insurance upon their lives.

J. W. GEORGE,
J. McCRAKEN,
Committee.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Feb. 27, 1881.

OFFICE OF INSURANCE COMMISSIONER,
SAN FRANCISCO, March 23, 1882.

Dr. Geo. A. Moore, President Pacific Mutual Life Insurance Co., San Francisco—DEAR SIR—Herewith you will find the certificate of this office of the capital, assets and liabilities of your company for the year ending December 31, 1881, in forwarding which I hold it to be due to you to congratulate you upon the wise retirement, by authority of law, of the guarantee notes which, since the organization of the company, have nominally been a part of its assets, whereas in fact, in my judgment they were an element of annoyance and a source of outlay entirely beyond any possible good they could ever be to either the policy holders or company. The assets now are real, tangible and good, which condition, I may excusably add, is due to intelligent, judicious management of the company's affairs. Life insurance, of late years in this state, has been conducted upon a more legitimate basis than formerly, the companies admitted to do business here exercising prudential caution in incurring risks, and meeting their losses in an honest, business-like way, no one of the number excelling your own in those respects. Very truly yours,

J. C. MAYNARD,
Insurance Commissioner.

RIVER IMPROVEMENT.

Saturday afternoon Messrs. D. P. Thompson, [illegible] Fred Clark and Capt. N. Ingersoll of the board of trade met at the Portland Savings bank yesterday afternoon to consider the following resolutions, passed at the last meeting of the Board.

Whereas, It is essential for the development of the domestic and foreign direct import trade of Oregon and Washington Territory that the city of Portland (without waiting for congressional assistance) take steps to improve the Willamette and Columbia rivers to the sea, for which authority is required from the state legislature to borrow the necessary moneys, and

Whereas, We believe such authority will certainly be granted next September.

Resolved, That we anticipate such legislation by at once making the necessary arrangements in conjunction with the city council, to devise the best means to make the required river improvements; that the council be respectfully asked to have survey soundings and plans made of the rivers from Portland to the sea, under the auspices of the United States (or some other competent) surveyor, in order that the work may be contracted for and proceeded with immediately upon the receipt of the requisite legislative authority. Further

Resolved, That the navigation committee wait upon the city council and request its co-operation and from time to time co-operate with it in carrying these resolutions into effect.

They found no necessity for obtaining soundings, as all necessary data can be obtained without cost from the United States engineers. The committee will offer a resolution to the board memorializing the legislature to authorize the city to issue bonds for $1,000,000 to improve the Columbia river and Columbia river bar, provided the general government fails to make a necessary appropriation.

Mothers, since that darling little boy of yours will smoke see that he uses the Duke of Durham cigarettes, for they are free from drugs and wrapped with the finest rice paper and are as harmless as tobacco used in any way can be.

W. SCHEFFLER'S PURE WINES AND BRANDY.

It is universally conceded that Wm. Scheffler's St. Helena (Cal.) sherry, Port, Angelica, Riesling and Claret wines as also his vacuum distilled pure Grape Brandy are really superior to other manufactures, not excepting that imported, the adulterations and impurities of which is now generally understood. Mr. Scheffler's goods are popularly known all over the Pacific coast. Eight-tenths of all the druggists in California, Oregon and Washington territory have adopted his goods, discarding the imported. Ask your druggist here in Portland, East Portland, or in any town in this northwest, and you will be quite sure to obtain it, as you will at most of the first class hotels and bars. Mr. Scheffler's Wines and Sanitary Brandy have been steadily growing into favor until they are known well in almost every household as a medicine if not otherwise. Mr. Scheffler's process of distilling in a vacuum is his own patent process which relieves his brandy of the fusil oil, making it really pure, sanitary and healthful.

Sindram Hung at Last.

NEW YORK, April 21.—Wm. Sindram was hanged this morning in the yard of the city prison for the murder of his landlady, Mrs. Margaret Crane, in January, 1881. The criminal met his fate with fortitude and never showed any signs of fear from the moment the hangman called upon him until the black cap was drawn over his eyes. His halter was fastened to clip hooks over his head and himself swung into eternity at 8:33. The procession emerged from the prison led by Sheriff Bowe and Under-sheriff Stevens. After them walked Dr. Morgan, praying aloud, and immediately behind came the prisoner, walking firmly and having on either side a deputy sheriff. Sindram was calm and nodded to those he knew as he passed on his way to the gallows. The hangman's assistant was nervous and forgot to lower the cap until reminded by Sindram, whose face twitched as he merely said "Hurry up." Pulling the cap down with a jerk, the assistant stepped in front of the peep hole, and when Sheriff Stevens gave the signal it could not be seen by the hangman and it was many seconds before the difficulty was discovered and the signal again given, when the body shot up in the air five feet and settled back six inches, the arms and legs twitching convulsively three minutes. The body was lowered within nine inches of the ground and six minutes after the pulse ceased to beat. The heart stopped its action in fifteen minutes after the drop fell. He was not lowered until ten minutes afterward, when it was discovered death was caused by strangulation.

Railroad Official Inspection.

OMAHA, April 22.—Jay Gould, accompanied by his wife and daughter, and R. S. Noyes, senior vice-president of the Missouri Pacific, and A. A. Talmadge, general manager of the same road, M. L. Sargent, general freight agent, Mr. Harding, assistant superintendent of the Nebraska division, J. C. House chief engineer, and A. L. Hopkins, vice president of the Wabash road, and J. M. Eddy, general superintendent of the Kansas and Texas division of the Missouri Pacific, arrived in Omaha this evening by special train over the recently completed Nebraska extension of the Missouri Pacific, from Hiawatha, Kansas, to Papillion, Nebraska, on the Union Pacific, 20 miles west of Omaha. This was the first through train over the Missouri Pacific extension, and the officers were pleased with the road. It is 132 miles from Hiawatha to the junction with the Union Pacific. The gap of 40 miles will be complete June 1st, when through trains between Omaha and St. Louis will be put on. In the meantime mixed trains will be run between Omaha and Atchison, via Hiawatha, on the St. Jo & Western railway, to St. Jo and Atchison, and will begin on next Monday. The Missouri Pacific will use the terminal facilities of the Union Pacific in Omaha.

An Abortive Attempt.

KANSAS CITY, April 21.—Passengers from the west report that the east bound passenger train on the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe was ditched last Sunday night near Rincon, New Mexico, and five heavily armed men attempted to rob the express, but got into the baggage instead of the express car, and before they could rectify their mistake the train men and passengers appeared in such numbers that the robbers fled. The fireman was killed by the accident and the engineer and Wells, Fargo & Co's messenger badly wounded. The express is supposed to have had $200,000 from Arizona mines bound for New York. It is thought that the robbers were informed of the fact by telegraph at Rincon and that they belong to a band of desperadoes who have been committing all kinds of depredations in New Mexico and Arizona for months past.

Pennsylvania's Punishment.

PERRYVILLE, Pa., April 22.—This district is the scene of a woeful devastation, waste and distress. The cyclone of Wednesday was of such short duration no accurate description can be given, but its fury is patent. Many stories of destruction of houses, churches, etc., are coming in, but little loss of life is yet reported, though Mr. Bundorf is probably fatally hurt, and Mrs. Joseph Glassburner and five children seriously injured. John Wiregrove's wife was taken up and dashed to the ground killing her instantly, but her baby, tightly clasped in her arms, was unharmed. The clothes of their five children caught fire mysteriously, and Alexander and Harry, aged 12 and 13, died of their injuries. Some of the others are not likely to recover. Jesse Stauffer and two daughters suffered severe injuries.

Progress of the Atlantic and Pacific.

CHICAGO, April 21.—H. C. Nutt, president of the Atlantic and Pacific railroad has just returned from an inspection of that line in New Mexico and Arizona, and of the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe. He says track laying is completed to Canyon Diablo, 311 miles west of the Rio Grande. A viaduct is built over the canyon 525 feet long and 254 feet high, to be completed May 25 at a cost of $250,000. The track will be pushed west to the Colorado river, 250 miles, at the rate of two miles a day; 150 miles of that distance is graded and steel rails for 200 miles are delivered. Plans are just completed for a bridge across the Colorado at a cost of $250,000, and they will also extend the division 100 miles west from Vinita, Indian territory. The president says the road will expend this year $6,600,000 in construction.

Some of Cannon's Previous Wickedness.

NEW YORK, April 21.—The Tribune reproduces affidavits to-day of Adolph Bazine, sometimes called Abram Levy, made in 1874, to the effect that ex-delegate Cannon tried in 1858 to induce him (Bazine) to murder Almon W. Babbitt, territorial secretary of Utah territory. These affidavits have been in possession of government at Washington for years. Mr. Merriman, as member of Congress in 1874, intended to use them in an effort to oust Cannon from his seat, but before he could complete his plan the solid support of democrats combined with that of a few republicans, made the project impracticable, and it was postponed.

Live Stock and Grain Notes.

CHICAGO, April 21.—The Belvoir and Manor herds of short-horns, owned by Richard and John Gibson of Ilderton, Canada, were sold at Dexter park today, the 41 head bringing $17,900. The most noteworthy sale was Imperial Duchess Wildeyes, to J. M. Bigstaff, of Mount Sterling, Ky., for $4000.

One of the causes of the panicky drop on call board this afternoon was the rumor that Phil. Armour, who was supposed to be the chief bull factor in the grain and provision trade, had suddenly died in Milwaukee. The rumor was groundless.

Murder and Suicide.

RICHARDSON, Tex., April 22.—Brown Pierce, a farmer three miles east of here, going from the field to his dinner to-day, found his wife hanging from a door knob and his three children lying dead on the floor. The supposition is that Mrs. Pierce strangled the children and then took a strong dose of laudanum and bluestone after she had hanged herself.

Another Execution.

Redistricting Illinois.

The Illinois senate to-day passed bills for redistricting the state in congressional and legislative districts. The vote stood 30 ayes to 14 noes. The bills now go to the house, where considerable opposition is anticipated.

A Rumor About Blaine.

The Evening Journal says the latest of the startling rumors at Washington is that James G. Blaine is to be appointed minister to England. Nobody need believe the report who does not wish to. He informed a delegation of Indiana gentlemen yesterday that he was going to Europe May 20th, and couldn't lecture for them.

Mine Sold.

DENVER, April 22.—The Times' Leadville special says: The Henrietta mine, owned by Tabor, Blaine, Chaffee, Moffat, Wilson and Kassler, was sold to English and French capitalists for $1,500,000. The value of ore in sight is said to be $900,000.

A Common School Bill.

Blair, from the committee on education and labor, reported back the bill to establish and temporarily support common schools, and can make no recommendation as to details of the bill but the majority favor recommending an appropriation from the treasury to aid in support of common schools, the same to be distributed to the several states and territories for a limited period of time and upon a basis of illiteracy; placed on calendar.

Proper Precaution.

San Francisco Chronicle.

A Connecticut man proposes to give one million dollars for the education of the freedmen. Let this philanthropist see to it that he founds his institutions and sees them in working order before he gives up the ghost, else he may be sure that his coin will go to fatten a board of trustees. A very pretty show could be made in the way of fitting up offices on the ingest of a million.

WASHINGTON CITY.

Butler's Alaska Bill.

WASHINGTON, April 22.—The bill reported to the senate yesterday by Butler as a substitute for the pending measure in regard to establishment of a government for Alaska, is entitled a bill for the organization of the territory of Alaska, and providing for the establishment of a civil government therefor. It provides for appointment of a governor in whom shall be vested executive power and authority in and over the territory; for a secretary who shall be ex-officio treasurer, and prescribes that the judicial power of the territory shall be vested in the supreme court and four inferior courts; that the governor, chief justice, surveyor general and marshal, all of whom are provided for by the bill, together with the collector of customs for districts, shall for the first year of operation of the territorial government be established a legislative council, with the governor as ex-officio president. It provides further that Sitka shall be the seat of government of the territory, that the territory shall be entitled to a delegate in the house of representatives who shall enjoy privileges similar to other territorial delegates, and all male citizens of the territory, including civilized Indians, shall be entitled to vote.

The Chinese Bill to be Pushed.

Senators Miller and Farley each took occasion to remind the senate to-day that they intend to press the Chinese bill for consideration just as soon as the Mississippi river bill is disposed of. Miller intimated that he would urge the senate to take up and press the bill next Tuesday whether pending business be then finished or not. Farley said he was assured by friends of the Mississippi improvement bill that it would be pressed to a final vote on Monday, and as the great importance of the Chinese bill was apparent to every senator, he earnestly hoped there would be no opposition to taking it up for action on the day following. He expressed his opinion that it will not occupy more than one day. The presiding officer, Judge Davis, remarked that notices of this kind had no binding effect, and the senate will have to determine on its order of business after disposing of the pending bill. This, of course, is true, and was understood before he announced it, but the repeated notices of California senators have nevertheless practically served the pre-emption purpose for which they were intended, and there is no doubt the Chinese bill will be brought before the senate for action on Tuesday or Wednesday at latest.

The republican caucus met to-day to fill the positions on committees vacated by Teller's resignation, but after this duty had been devolved upon a caucus committee of arrangements, Edmunds brought up the Chinese question by the suggestion that it would be a good party policy to unite republicans in support of the amendment reported from the foreign relations committee, which provides for striking out the 14th and 15th sections of the house bill. Those are sections that expressly prohibit Chinese naturalization and define the term Chinese laborers to mean both skilled and unskilled laborers. The caucus met at half-past eleven when Edmunds made this suggestion. There remained only 15 or 20 minutes before the time of assembling of senate, consequently there was little opportunity for discussing the question, but it soon became evident a large number of eastern senators were in favor of adopting Edmunds' counsels. The argument was these sections made no change in the existing law and did not broaden the treaty meaning of the word "laborers," and that was, in his point of view, unnecessary and useless for the purposes of the bill; they were distasteful to eastern sentiment and therefore, said Edmunds, the question for Pacific coast representatives to answer was whether they would prefer to keep these sections in the bill and get a very small republican vote in the senate, or by omitting them secure the votes of nearly all the republicans. Senator Miller and Jones promptly replied that they could not consent to have these sections stricken out, for whatever might or might not have been the practical utility of inserting them in the first instance, it would unquestionably subject the republican party to very troublesome suspicion or accusations if they were at this late day stricken out. Miller and Jones also emphatically remarked that they would refuse to be bound by any caucus action on the Chinese question. The hour for adjournment arrived before the interchange of views proceeded any further, and it is not likely that the subject will be brought before another caucus meeting. In that case the committee amendments referred to will be sustained by a majority of the senate. It must nevertheless be borne in mind, however, that two democrats, namely, Brown and Hill, of Georgia, are thoroughly opposed to the Chinese bill, and if Miller and Jones should be deserted by their republican colleagues when the vote is taken on these amendments, the result in a full senate would be determined by Davis, of Illinois, who would be almost certain to vote to strike out sections 14 and 15. The arrival of this contingency is not at all probable, however, for the Pacific coast republicans confidently rely upon receiving continued and consistent support from the Colorado senators and several others who held the fort with them throughout the contest over the vetoed bill.

Rodgers, care of Lieut Healy of the revenue steamer Corwin, at San Francisco: "The revenue cutter Corwin will land the officers and crew of the Rodgers at St. Michaels, Ounalaska, or Sitka, as may be thought best, looking to their speedy arrival at San Francisco. After leaving the cutter you will proceed with your command to the navy yard at Mare Island, and report to the commander, and report your arrival to this department by telegraph, and the Alaska Commercial Company offers to transport the entire party to San Francisco in their steamer St. Paul, but you will take the steamer which will enable you to arrive at the earliest date."

Blaine's Trip to Europe.

WASHINGTON, April 22.—Absurd rumors were telegraphed by specials last night that Blaine was to be appointed minister to England. This arose out of fact known for some weeks that Blaine and his family were to leave for Europe early in May, to be gone for six months at least. Blaine's friends say his health does not demand the trip, but in view of the distraction of the party he does not wish to take part in the fall elections, which if he stayed here he could hardly fail to be drawn into. When he testifies before the house committee on foreign relations in reply to insinuations of Shipherd he will make his last public appearance until next winter.

A Monument for Chief Justice Marshall.

The bar association of Philadelphia, forty years ago, raised between $3000 and $4000 for erecting in Washington a statue to Chief Justice Marshall. This fund with its accumulation, now amounts to about $20,000. The association offers to add it to an appropriation of $20,000 made by congress for the same purpose. A congressional committee to-day decided to accept the proposition and favor erecting the statue in the park at the intersection of Pennsylvania avenue and Seventh street.

Congressional Notes.

WASHINGTON, April 21.—The senate committee on territories to-day, decided to report Vest's Indian territory bill with amendment. Dr. Lamson's Sanity.

The British Medical Journal in an article on Dr. Lamson, says it is seriously to be hoped new testimony from America will enable the home secretary to decide Dr. Lamson insane when he committed the murder, but it must be admitted the evidence hitherto published, does not justify any such belief.

Jewish Emigration.

BERLIN, April 22.—A committee of prominent citizens of all denominations has been formed, for the purpose of promoting emigration of Jews from Russia. They have already raised 105,000 marks.

Riots in England.

LONDON, April 22.—The riots in Camborne, Cornwall, growing out of ill feeling against Irish miners, were renewed last night. The mob stoned the police when charged by them and several police and people were injured. A serious riot occurred at Ruabon, Wales, owing to a strike of colliers. The rioters did great damage to property. A detachment of militia was sent to quell the disturbance.

The New Chinese Bill.

Sacramento Record-Union.

Senator Miller's new Chinese bill, with a ten-year suspensory provision, appears, from the account of it furnished by telegraph, to be in every respect but that of the time limit as effective as that which the president vetoed. Indeed it is so strong a bill that unless the president is prepared to abandon some of the ground taken by him in his veto message he is hardly likely to accept it.

Ayers Cherry Pectoral is mild and soothing in its immediate and apparent effects, and possesses far-reaching and powerful healing qualities which its persistent use will demonstrate in any case of coughs, colds, throat or lung troubles of any kind.

Cause of the Indian Outbreak.

Agent Tiffany, of San Carlos agency, Arizona, states the trouble at the agency was caused by sixty renegade Indians who left the reservation last September and went to Mexico, returning and forcing out a band of Warm Springs Indians under Chief Loco, who refused to leave last fall. On hearing of their presence, Chief Sterling, of the San Carlos scouts, with Sagota, Indian captain of scouts, went to see it any renegades were about and were killed by the few renegades acting as rear guard.

The prisoner was taken to Milton to-day. Hendricks declined to have anything to do with his guilty wife.

Tonnage Rates at San Francisco.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 22.—The marked improvement in the English wheat market and light supply of ready tonnage in port has stimulated the market during the past week to considerable activity at steady improving rates. At the date of last review £2 15s bid on orders for Liverpool, Havre, or Antwerp, was the full quotations for wood, while the highest asking rate was £3 for the same destinations. Since then £3 to Cork, U. K., has been paid, and at the close £3 to Liverpool, Havre or Antwerp direct is asked. An iron ship has been taken at £3 5s to U. K., a relatively higher rate than paid for the wood, which is due to scarcity of iron tonnage on spot. The amount of tonnage due in April is light, and while an easier tone pervades the English market at close, there is no reason to expect lower rates for either this month.

NEVADA.

Anti-Chinese Meeting.

CARSON, April 21.—At the anti-Chinese meeting to-night Chief Justice Leonard, a republican, and Major Girard, a democrat, presided. The meeting was largely attended and very enthusiastic.

Comstock Notes.

VIRGINIA, April 22.—The ore body on the 2500-level of Union is making sharply southeast and steadily improving. The yield of ore this week will be about 1560 tons. The northeast drift on the 2600-foot level has been advanced 20 feet with the face in a mixture of quartz, clay and porphyry. It has yet 40 or 50 feet to go to reach the point where ore is expected. No ore has yet been extracted from the rich streak recently passed through, as blasting would interfere with the men in the drift on the 2700-foot level. East crosscut No. 1 is still being advanced. Owing to a change in the dip of the ore body on the 2600-foot level it is hard to say where ore will be found on the 2700-foot level, but it is supposed to be further east.

The drifts on the 2700-foot level of the Mexican are so close together it is necessary to use precautions in blasting, though they still continue blasting on both sides.

Storrs and Nelson hung on to the boat until rescued by Indians. The two boys started for shore, one reaching there and the other being drowned on the way. The lost boy was Marion Nelson, and was 18 years of age. He and the others of the family were new comers, having arrived from Howard lake, Minnesota only the Monday previous.

ALASKA AFFAIRS.

Shipping, Mineral and General News from the North.

[SPECIAL DISPATCH TO THE OREGONIAN.]

PORT TOWNSEND, April 22.—News from Sitka states: The Wachusetts has been practicing during the month of March in firing shot and shell at floating targets, which had quite an effect on the Indians.

A large number of deaths have recently occurred among the Russian creole population. These people are, through want and disease, rapidly decreasing in numbers. There are now only five native Russians in southeastern Alaska.

Petitions have been in circulation and extensively signed throughout the territory protesting against the mail being awarded to the owner of the Evangel on the ground that she is a small steamboat and wholly unfit for the service, and the loss of the George S. Wright some years since is brought forward to sustain the objection.

On April 1 the ship Sellbarr, Capt. Otis, sailed for San Francisco.

There is a large quantity of badly mutilated coin in circulation throughout the archipelago. The Indians make no objections to receiving it, as it passes current with the traders.

Much indignation is expressed by the miners respecting section 14 of the Grover-George bill for the establishment of a civil government over the territory, as it prohibits the importation of wines and malt liquors. If this becomes a law, it is a direct blow at the trade of Portland, and will occasion more smuggling here and great loss of revenue. It seems that M. D. Ball, the messenger to carry on the resolutions of the convention of last fall, has appeared before the senate committee on territories and advocated this measure. He was not sent to Washington for any such purpose, and the miners and citizens generally are very much enraged.

The weather during March was very cold and clear, likewise in April. The snow, however, at Sitka is disappearing.

The Northwest Trading Company's steamer Favorite returned to Sitka on the 10th, with a cargo of rich and valuable furs. The new trading store is completed and occupied.

Webster & Lockwood brought up a five-stamp mill by the last steamer, which they will erect some three miles up Gold creek.

Treadwell's mill, on Douglas island, is in course of erection.

When the Chester left Juneau the snow was seven feet deep in the town, and many more in the basin. Miners and prospectors should postpone coming to the country until the June steamer.

CONGRESSIONAL PROCEEDINGS.

Senate.

WASHINGTON, April 21.

Garland reported favorably a bill allowing retired army officers to hold civil office in territories.

Miller said he would call up the Chinese bill Tuesday.

Vance presented a resolution for a special committee of three senators to investigate alleged revenue frauds in North Carolina; adopted.

Butler reported a substitute for the bill reorganizing the district of southeast Alaska and providing a civil government therefor; calendar.

Discussion of the Mississippi improvement bill was resumed and McPherson advocated increasing the appropriation to $15,000,000.

Vest maintained that in cases in which the work was too vast for the state, especially in view of the enormous damages sustained, it was the constitutional duty of the government to protect owners from effects of overflow, because the government was owner of the stream and must see that its property does not injure others. The bill went over as unfinished business. After executive session, senate adjourned till Monday.

House.

The house considered the bill to afford relief to congress by the president from investigating claims against the government.

A Small Sized Statesman.

New York Tribune.

Senator Voorhees wants war with Great Britain. In his speech to the senate about it to-day the land league listened and applauded from the galleries. The speaker's voice trembled and his frame shook with emotion. He thinks Secretary Blaine should have been impeached because he did not declare war. He wants Minister Lowell recalled at once, and thanks a failure of the republican administration to bring matters to a crisis, should be sufficient reason for the seating of democrats in power. Senator Voorhees is really a very cheap article of the demagogue in the United States senate in his debut as an Irishman from Indiana.

Oakland, California, is to have a nail factory. A representative of the Oakland nail factory, which is in active operation in the new enterprise, recently stated that the projectors were ready to incorporate; that 125 skilled laborers would be employed, 75 being the heads of families; that the company was ready to locate in Oakland provided it received substantial aid. A committee was appointed to confer with the representative of the company in regard to location. The company proposes to commence about the 1st of September with a capital stock of $500,000.

The State of Trade at Chicago.

CHICAGO, April 22.—Finances are in a satisfactory condition so far as solidity is concerned, but there is a shortage in the crop of borrowers and money goes begging at 5@6 per cent. Clearings for the week were estimated Saturday at $44,000,000. Eastern exchange is at 75 cents premium. Currency is not going into the country rapidly. Securities of nearly every kind are advancing. Governments sold at 122, while local cities and county bonds sell at equivalent rates. The wholesale mercantile trade is healthy, but not noticeably active. The slight drop in some articles is more than counterbalanced by the general stiffness. Collections are rather easy. Coffees and some oils are a little off. Butter is declining. Hay is heavy. Coal and some hardware is weak, but dry goods, clothing, millinery and most groceries are dull. Lumber is brisk and very firm, although offerings are larger. Receipts since January 1st have been 160,000,000 feet, an increase over the same period of last year of 136,000,000. Shingles have increased 50,000,000, the receipts being 63,000,000. Shipments and sales show an increase of 25,000,000 feet of lumber and 73,000,000 shingles. On 'change this week has been a busy and feverish one, with prices at what some consider dizzy height, and an almost daily advancing market. The statistical situation is anxiously watched. It is an undenied fact that receipts at this time of year have rarely been so small, when prices are relatively as high. Wheat receipts are merely nominal, and corn, although nearly twice as high as this time last year, is coming in very moderately. Stocks in store are getting lower, and it is now reported that the clique intend to ship all wheat on hand. To-day's record gives some color to the story, as shipments exceed receipts by 50,000 bushels. Corn is getting low in lanes. The grain in sight April 15th was 22,000,000 bushels, against 39,000,000 bushels the same time last year. A year ago to-day wheat sold at $1 05¼, corn 14c, oats 36¼, pork $17 50, lard $12 20@12 50. Wheat as compared with that day shows an advance of 32 cents, corn 31, oats 13, pork 50, and lard 2¼ cents. To-day wheat was unsettled, irregular, and the realizers were out in force. The general tone was strong, although reports from outside favored weakness. The opening was easy and prices soon dropped 1@1¼c, but rallied under speculation ¾@1c and then eased off, and with some fluctuations closed ½c lower for June and ⅛c lower for July than yesterday's sales. Sales were 1,850,000 bushels and prices ruled low, closing ⅜@½c off. Corn was fairly active, but fluctuations were small and rates, reduced by a variety of causes, were rather weak and opened lame at ¼@⅜c lower, then dropped ⅜@¾c, rallied ¼@½, and then ruled weaker to the close. Sales, 75½@76¼c May, 74@74⅛c June, 74½@75 July. On call sales were heavy, amounting to 3,000,000, and prices panicky, declining ⅝@2¼c. The lowest drop was in June, which sold down to 71½c, being 3¼c below the best price for the day. Oats were quiet, with free offering and limited demand and a decided drop all round. May sold 1c lower and closed 1¼c lower. Sales were at 49½@50¼c, May 48¾@49¼c, and June 44@45c.

The prospects of a steady increase in arrivals was what broke the market and on call demoralization continued, prices dropping and sales reaching 450,000 bushels. Pork was in moderate demand, prices ruling easy and 15@25c lower, closing quiet at the reduction. Sales, $18@18 20 May, $18 15@18 June, $18 35@18 60 July. On call sales were 27,000 barrels and prices steady at 7½c lower. Lard was freely offered, but the demand was not urgent. Prices were weak, declining 2½@5c. Sales, $11 22½@11 30 May, $11 35@11 42½ June, $11 50@11 55 July. Call sales, 14,500, at prices 2½@5c lower. Upwards of six million dollars worth of property changed hands on call.

NEW YORK MARKETS.

NEW YORK, April 22.—Markets are generally quiet. Wheat is less active and exporters are holding off.

Barley—Dull and nominal.

Provisions—Quiet and steady.

Rio coffee—Dull and nominal.

Refined sugar—Dull; closing firm after some weakness.

Hides—Quiet.

Turpentine—Quiet and lower at closing.

Eastern Freight Situation.

NEW YORK, April 22.—There has been no special movement in the clipper freight market, which at this season is always more or less quiet, it being between "hay and grass." However on the whole there was a very fair trade doing considering the active opposition of the Pacific roads and ships are doing fairly well. Rates are very steady at last quotations. Tonnage is in fair demand for California and Oregon ports, but there is still a scarcity, and for such vessels as are available or are near at hand, owners ask full figures. The ship Anna Camp takes a cargo of railroad material hence to San Diego. Railroad freights show more activity. Isthmus freights are very quiet and the steamer hence to-day had only a small cargo for California.

There is no material change in the Clipper freight market, which is moving along very evenly, for this proverbially dull period. Shipments of weight are yet more dull than of light freight, and ships are in want of the latter. Rates continue firm at previous quotations. Tonnage still continues scarce, and is wanted. The steamer hence yesterday had 1,500 kegs of nails and a lot of muck iron for San Francisco.

Freights at Boston are moderately active. The bark Arcturus is well advanced and expects to get away this month. Railroad freights at Boston are quite lively, with shipments of 125 cases champagne, 200 cases yeast powder, 400 boxes herring, 510 packages fish, 50 barrels oakum and 700 kegs horse shoes.

At Philadelphia the market is rather slow. The Merom is, however, doing fairly.

Boston Wool Market.

BOSTON, April 21.—There has been an active demand for wool but prices remain the same. Transactions in fine fleeces have been 650,000 pounds and include X and XX at 41@42c, and good and choice selects at 42½@44c. Michigan and Wisconsin X fleeces have been selling at 40@41c, and are firm for good average lots at these figures, as stocks are quite small. No. 1 fleeces have been selling at 44@46½c and are in moderate demand. Unwashed fleeces are in fair request and sales have been principally at 25@32c, with some choice selections of medium fleeces at higher prices. Combing and delaine selections are quiet at 43@48c for fine delaine and fine combing; unwashed combings are dull and sales limited. California wool is quiet with sales principally at 15@28c for fall. The new spring clip is held above the views of buyers. Pulled wools are steady and have been selling at 45@50c for choice supers, and 24@32c for common and good. Australia wool is in demand with sales at 45@46c; some 200,000 pounds having been taken. Cape and Montevideo wool is quiet. Entire sales of the week: 2,600,000 pounds of all kinds.

Liverpool Market Quotations.

LIVERPOOL, April 22.—A leading weekly grain circular says: Wheat in some markets is 1s dearer, but millers are reluctant to pay an advance. Cargoes are weaker in Liverpool, and business has been only moderate. Corn has declined 2d. At to-day's market wheat declined 2d, but flour was in good demand.

Gold and Stock Reports.

King of the Blood

is not a "cure all;" it is a blood purifier and tonic. Impurity of blood poisons the system, deranges the circulation, and thus induces many disorders, known by different names to distinguish them according to effects, but being really branches or phases of that great generic disorder, Impurity of Blood. Such are Dyspepsia, Biliousness, Liver Complaint, Constipation, Nervous Disorders, Headache, Backache, General Weakness, Heart Disease, Dropsy, Kidney Disease, Piles, Rheumatism, Catarrh, Scrofula, Skin Disorders, Pimples, Ulcers, Swellings, &c., &c. King of the Blood prevents and cures these by attacking the cause, Impurity of the Blood. Chemists and physicians agree in calling it "the most genuine and efficient preparation for the purpose." Sold by Druggists, $1 per bottle. See testimonials, directions, &c., in pamphlet, "Treatise on Diseases of the Blood," wrapped around each bottle.
